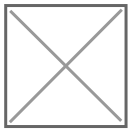
Steven Peters

Director Government Relations



Steven Peters is the director of government relations for networks at Coventry/Enlyte. In this role, Steven develops relationships with legislative, administrative and other government officials nationwide who maintain oversight over workers' compensation and no-fault auto insurance systems. He serves as both a trusted resource for government officials with questions about network products or implementation and as a point of contact for team members needing to connect with government officials or with questions about proposed legislation and rules.

Prior to joining Enlyte, Steven spent a decade as legislative staff for various members of the Wisconsin State Legislature, working on policy issues related to insurance, workforce, utilities and many other areas. He was subsequently appointed Administrator of the Wisconsin Workers' Compensation Division, where he served for five years overseeing division policy and operations while also chairing the Wisconsin Workers' Compensation Advisory Council.

During his tenure as Administrator, Steven served on the board of directors of the International Association of Industrial Accident Boards and Commissions (IAIABC), on the Southern Association of Workers' Compensation Administrators (SAWCA) Steering Committee, and as President of the Central States Workers' Compensation Association. Today, he continues his involvement with the IAIABC as Chair of the Research and Standards Committee and as a member of the Associate Member Council.
