How are drugs priced? What drugs are the leading cause of price increases? What matters more - the drug or the utilization? And what should you be doing to help keep your program effective and your claimants safe and on the road to recovery? Nikki Wilson, Pharm.D./MBA, Clinical Product Director, answers all these questions and more in this popular webinar. Wilson says, “If you’re controlling appropriate utilization, you also control price in a number of ways. Through valuable data analytics, enhanced technology applications, and various clinical programs that drive patient safety, we’re starting to get to this future state of really managing total claims cost and really driving outcomes through clinical management in general.”
