WAYNE, Pa. – August 26, 2014 – Genex Services, LLC (“Genex”), the leading provider of case management services to the workers' compensation, disability, and auto markets, has announced that Genex Social Security, a division of Genex Services, LLC, has received the Supplier of the Year Award for 2013, as part of Unum's 2013 Global Supplier Awards Program.

Unum is a leading provider of financial protection benefits through the workplace in the U.S. and the U.K. Unum's benefits help protect millions of working people and their families in the event of an illness, injury, or loss of life. The company works with a wide range of suppliers who assist Unum's everyday operations to ensure continued supply of goods and services that deliver a sustainable competitive advantage consistent with the overall needs of the business.

“Great supplier relationships not only allow Unum to be competitive in the marketplace, but improve the processes that benefit Unum customers,” said William Bagley, vice president of global procurement for Unum. “This awards program helps us to acknowledge the strong relationships we have with our suppliers and to recognize their contributions to our success.”

“We are honored to receive this award from Unum. For more than 17 years, Genex has provided Social Security representation and other case management services to Unum, and our partnership is unique in the industry,” said Melissa Davey, vice president, disability programs. “The key to our successful partnership has been developed through open communication, a willingness to learn and understand Unum's business needs, and a strong commitment to high quality service to all of Unum's internal and external clients.”

Unum launched its Global Supplier Awards Program in 2013 to recognize the achievement of suppliers that excel in the areas of quality, cost performance, customer service, technical performance, management, and sustainability.
