Risk & Insurance: How Case Managers Can Assist Employees Who Are Delaying Care Due to COVID-Related Anxieties

November 9, 2020
1 MIN READ

Injured workers may try to delay treatment over fears that they will contract COVID-19. Nurse case managers can help keep them on track.

Since the beginning of the pandemic, workers' comp patients have faced many barriers to care â€” from clinics shutting down as stay-at-home orders were issued to hospitals putting non-essential procedures on hold as they braced for the COVID-19 pandemic to overflow capacity. Continue reading here.
