Workerscompensation.com: Mental Health in WC: Increased Demand for Psychological/Psychiatric IMEs

June 16, 2021
1 MIN READ

Even before the COVID-19 outbreak, there had been a rise in requests for mental health evaluations on workers' compensation claims â€“ what is known as psychological or psychiatric independent medical examinations. These types of evaluations help determine if there are behavioral, emotional, or cognitive issues resulting from a workplace incident, as well as the extent of those issues.
